

This states that every positive integer is a product of a unique set of primes.