This branch of mathematics studies geometric shapes through the algebraic structure of functions on them.