

This branch of mathematics studies the basic properties of collections.