There is no set whose cardinality is between that of the integers and the real numbers.