

Abstract

The talk will be about the relationship among wavelets, approximation theory and image compression technology. After a brief review of some wavelet schemes and approximation theory from a practical perspective, we will focus on their applications to image compression. I will also give a demonstration using my own software.